First Completion of Challenger 350 Repainting

Dear Valued Business Partner,

We are pleased to announce that RUAG Aviation is the first-ever in Europe to complete the repainting of a Bombardier Challenger 350. The repainting was completed in record time and with maximum accountability. Minute and precise customisation guidelines, personalised artwork and harmonising finishing effects characterised this milestone.

Trusted Partner

Our customer, Windrose Air Jet Charter, approached us with the unique request to repaint a brand new Challenger 350 jet on behalf of their client. Having already confirmed expert capabilities in jet painting to Windrose, most recently in August 2015, they entrusted us with this bespoke project. Elements of fine artwork and bold graphics contributed to the Challenger 350 owner's personal statement. Complete design details even included exact specifications for paint and finishing products.

Reliable Consultancy

Precise implementation within timing and budget constraints dictated the parameters of the project. RUAG's specialists were able to optimise the downtime by recommending alternative Bombardier certified paint and finishes without compromise to either quality or the owner's visual concept. The multi-layer, special effect paint system, chosen in close collaboration with the design office and the owner, provided the desired opalescent visual effects and effectively reduced the timing.

The customer enjoyed complete transparency as our painting consultancy team ramped up the daily progress reporting to include photographs along with the written documentation. Full tracking and verification of the aircraft's progress is made possible as we continually strive to provide first-class service.

We are proud to have achieved this milestone and to have served our customer to their complete satisfaction.
